INTRODUCTION

Since its foundation, FAPMI has developed and implemented more than 170 programs and projects about prevention, detection, notification, attention and intervention regarding child protection, child maltreatment and the promotion of the good treatment and child well-being. These activities are implemented with the support of collaborators, wide networks, including national, regional and local Governments, Administrations and Organizations (as NGOs or Foundations) regarding child protection or prevention of child mistreatment.

In this Summary we present a brief revision of the Programs of the Federation. More information can be found in the Annual Activities Reports or in other documents. A list of them is included at the end of the description of every Program. In this Summary we have preferred not to include information about the Regional Programs developed by the Member Associations of the Federation, provided that its description would turn out to be very long. In any case, the information mentioned above is available to the interested parties.

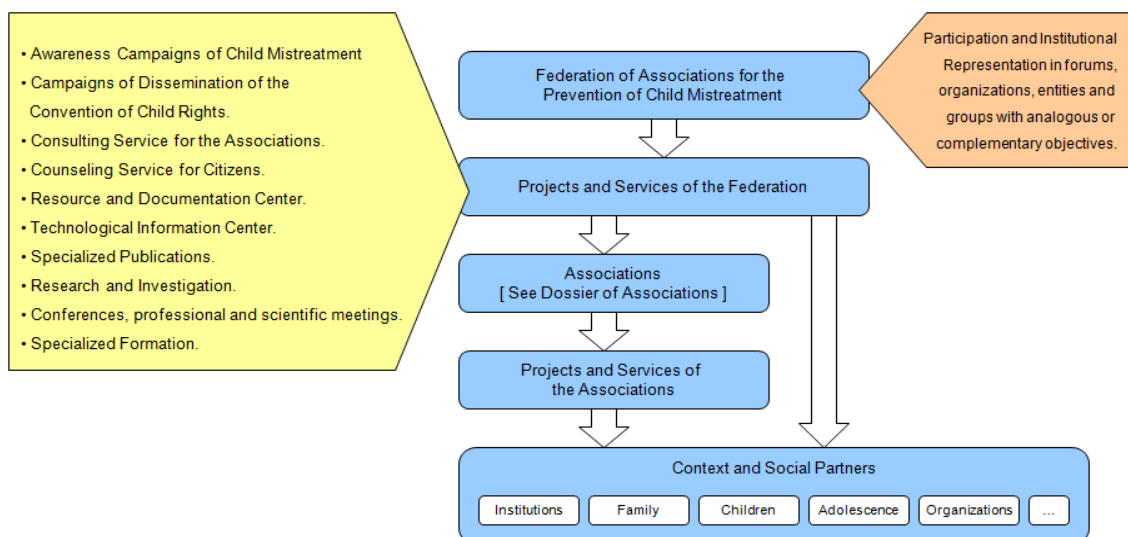

Regarding main strategies used by FAPMI implemented to fulfill our mission and vision, we consider these as the most important aspects:

1. PREVENTION AND AWARENESS: Prevention campaigns and actions oriented to general population and professionals directly and indirectly related with the attention to child and adolescents from different fields.
2. DIFFUSION OF INFORMATION: Diffusion of information related to prevention, detection, notification, attention and intervention in cases of child mistreatment and Protocols of Action.
3. QUALIFICATION: Training of professionals of different fields (education, health, social services, police, monitors of leisure...).
4. KNOWLEDGE MANAGEMENT: Elaboration of reports and research projects regarding detection of and attention to children and adolescents victims or those at risk. Management and diffusion of scientific information, validated programs and best practices by means of the Virtual Documentary Center in collaboration with the University of Salamanca.

5. ADVOCACY: Participation in the process of elaboration, follow-up and evaluation of regional and national policies and Plans. From our experience and knowledge in the field of child protection and attention to cases of child and adolescent mistreatment, the Federation tries to move them to the decision-makers and people and structures with power to improve the attention to children, adolescents and families at different levels.

6. CONSTRUCTION AND PROMOTION OF NETWORK: Promotion of networks and collaboration with other organizations, administrations, professionals and individuals which have similar or complementary aims with the Federation. The most relevant events regarding this are:
 - Participation in the foundation of the National Platform of Child Organizations and participation in its Directive Board.
 - Participation in the constitution of the Consortium ECPAT España since its foundation.
 - The member Associations of FAPMI participate in the regional networks regarding child protection.
 - Since its foundation, the Federation and its Associations are active collaborators with numerous Organizations, Administrations, Governments and individuals to obtain its goals.

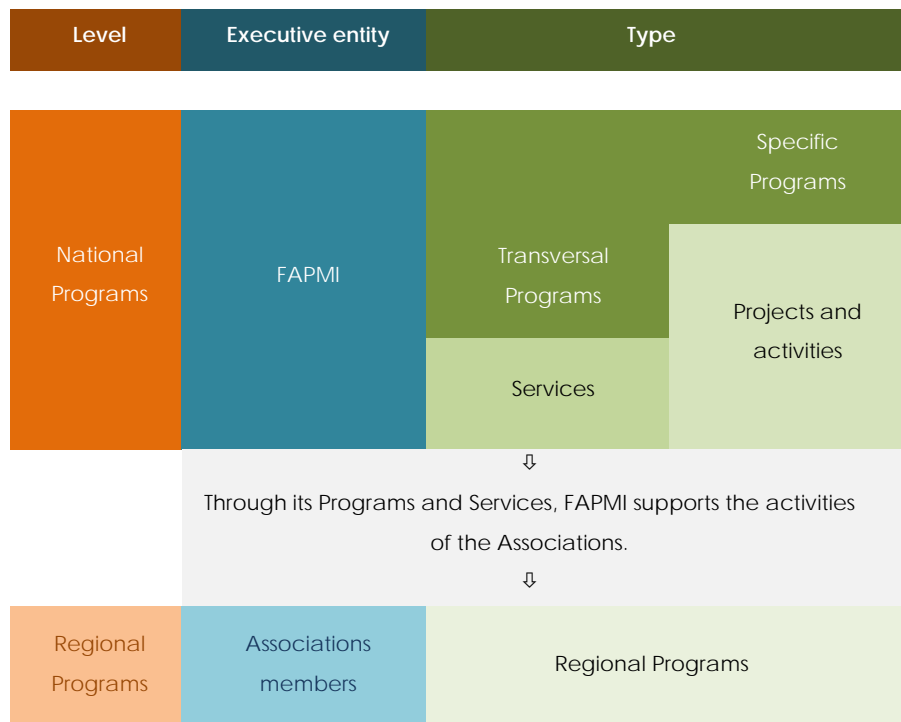

All of these main strategies are included in the FAPMI's II Strategic Plan (2011-2013) and all the Programs of the Federation are related with one or more of these main strategies. In the following graph we present an overview of the areas of work of the Federation and its relation with Associations.

- Provide information of both legal and psychosocial character to the professionals that surround children and adolescents in the judicial process, in a way that they can give them the best possible care and prevent mistreatment caused by the very own dynamic of the institution.
- Guide our actions to all agents involved in the process, with special attention to those that are minors of age and their families.
- Influence in a special way, those responsible of decision making in matters related to the care of children and adolescents in the field of Judicial Administration.
- Conduct regular monitoring of the changes related with the participation of children and teenagers in the judicial field and its processes; actively involve all significant players in its elaboration; encourage opportunities for discussion and exchange of Good Practices and produce reports with improvement proposals, as well as consult about their implementation.

SP2: PROGRAM FOR THE PREVENTION OF SEXUAL VIOLENCE AGAINST CHILDREN AND ADOLESCENTSSUMMARY

According to the Document of Presentation of the Council of Europe's Campaign "One In Five", available data suggest that around 1 out of 5 children in Europe might be victim of some form of sexual violence. It is estimated that in 70 to 85% of cases, the perpetrator is known by the victim. Child sexual violence can take many forms: incest and sexual abuse, pornography, prostitution, trafficking, corruption and sexual assault by peers. Children victims of sexual violence suffer more than just an intolerable violation of their physical integrity: their mental health can also be affected and their bonds of trust with adults destroyed. The victims often take refuge in silence because they feel shame, guilt and fear. Some child victims are so young that they have no idea what is happening to them, and very often children do not know how or where to seek help.

At the same time, commercial sexual exploitation of Children and Adolescents in all its types is a hard reality and Spain is not foreign to this reality that must be considered as a modality of child mistreatment.

Departing from this framework, FAPMI is conscious that this reality demands an effective response, with prevention being the best strategy.

MAIN OBJECTIVES

TP2: "MY WELL-BEING IS YOUR RESPONSIBILITY"SUMMARY

Under the name "My wellbeing is your responsibility", the Federation of Associations for the Prevention of Child Mistreatment has been developing diverse acts of awareness and prevention of mistreatment to children and adolescents, directed to the general population since 2006. The main activity of this Program is the Annual Campaign for the Prevention of Child Mistreatment in collaboration with the Ministry of Health and Social Policy.

The Program includes the creation of an intransigent public opinion with the use of violence against children and adolescents and inadequate educational methods and, in the same sense, the diffusion of the Federation's public positioning by means of press release or presence in the Mass Media. One of the historical objectives of FAPMI has been the public denunciation of situations that violate Child Rights, especially related with mistreatment of children and adolescents. In 2010, this objective was emphasized, since the Federation considered the positioning opposite these types of situations as awareness activities of the entire population. All of the actions of the Press Office are available at <http://www.fapmi.es/contenido1.asp?sec=36&pp=1>.

MAIN OBJECTIVES

To increase the awareness of the general population and professionals regarding children and adolescents mistreatment.

To bring scientific information to the general population on child mistreatment and its prevention.

Support and diffusion of Campaigns of others.

METHODOLOGY

Promotion of awareness activities directed to the citizens and professionals, including the promotion and organization of expositions about child mistreatment.

Diffusion of information and messages through the Mass Media and Social Networks.

Organization of seminars and conferences about the reality of child mistreatment to the general population or specific sectors.

TP3: PROGRAM OF INFORMATION AND KNOWLEDGE MANAGEMENT

SUMMARY

In our society changes are produced quickly and the advances in research provide data that permits more productive and effective interventions, which is why it is essential to have constant daily knowledge updates. In updating, one of the most developed, accessible and valued resources is written and audiovisual information that is at the disposition of professionals and the general population. With the opening and use of the FAPMI's Virtual Documentary Center in 2012, FAPMI wants to cover this need and to set up a source of information and training relevant to the associated people and entities, as well as to all of those interested in this phenomenon.

Within this line of action, FAPMI established a collaboration agreement with the Center of Documentation of Wellbeing and Child and Adolescent Mistreatment of the Faculty of Psychology at the University of Salamanca, under the direction of Professor Félix López Sánchez, a project developed with the help of the Junta de Castilla and León (Regional Government). With this agreement, FAPMI will take charge of the management of the Documentation Center.

Together with the publications carried out by the Federation, each one of the Member Associations develops other materials and contents that are edited in collaboration with the institutions and local and autonomous entities.

This Program is directly associated to the Service of Orientation and Information to Citizens (which is described hereinafter). The Program of Information and Knowledge Management includes the search, indexation and diffusion of all the contents regarding child protection and well-being that are available or which we have news. Part of these contents are specific for professionals or researchers but another part of them can be used to inform the general population when they need counseling about child mistreatment situations.

OBJECTIVES

Elaboration, edition and publication of specific contents regarding prevention, detection, notification, attention and intervention in child mistreatment.

Search, indexation and diffusion of contents regarding child protection and well-being.

METHODOLOGY

- Elaboration and diffusion of several materials (reports, programs...) edited in paper or digital in the different collections:
 - i. Collection "Publication for the protection of children and adolescents".
 - ii. Collection "Notebooks of well-being and child protection".
 - iii. Review "Well-being and Child Protection".
- Search, indexation and diffusion of materials, programs, researches, reports, articles and every type of information elaborated by others.
